Another Special Session Assembly Is Called By Long

Louisiana Legislature Called to Meet Late Friday

3-POINT PROGRAM

May Seek to Fortify His Nomination As Secretary of State

BATON ROUGE, La. —(AP)—Governor Earl Long called the Louisiana legislature to meet in special session at 4:30 p. m. Friday.

A telegram Long sent to all members of the legislature said in part: "We must finance social security, hot lunch programs for schools, and the building of a tuberculosis hospital which have been started."

"I urge you that as an elected representative of the people it is your duty to attend."

Special Session Likely

BATON ROUGE, La. —(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long said Thursday night he would summon the legislature if necessary to continue his free lunch program, as reports circulated he might call the assembly to fortify his nomination as secretary of state.

The Baton Rouge State-Times reported citizens planned to converge on the capitol in mass protest if a session should be called. It reported bills for a session already prepared and Long ready to resign as chief executive in order to retain the nomination.

The governor, defeated in a run-off primary, issued a 2,500-word statement. "I have just noted from the press," he said, "that the hot lunch program will be dropped, also the newspaper comment that this was strictly a voting-getting scheme. This is not so."

"I shall continue the hot lunch program even if I have to call a special session of the legislature to raise the funds to carry out the $1,000,000 voted by the last session."

Long's special session between the first and second primary elections voted $1,000,000 for supplying school children free lunches but neglected to supply the funds.

Filling in Words

Practically every school child learns the preamble to the Declaration of Independence. The following paragraph is taken from this preamble. Each blank space represents a word for you to fill in. Try it.

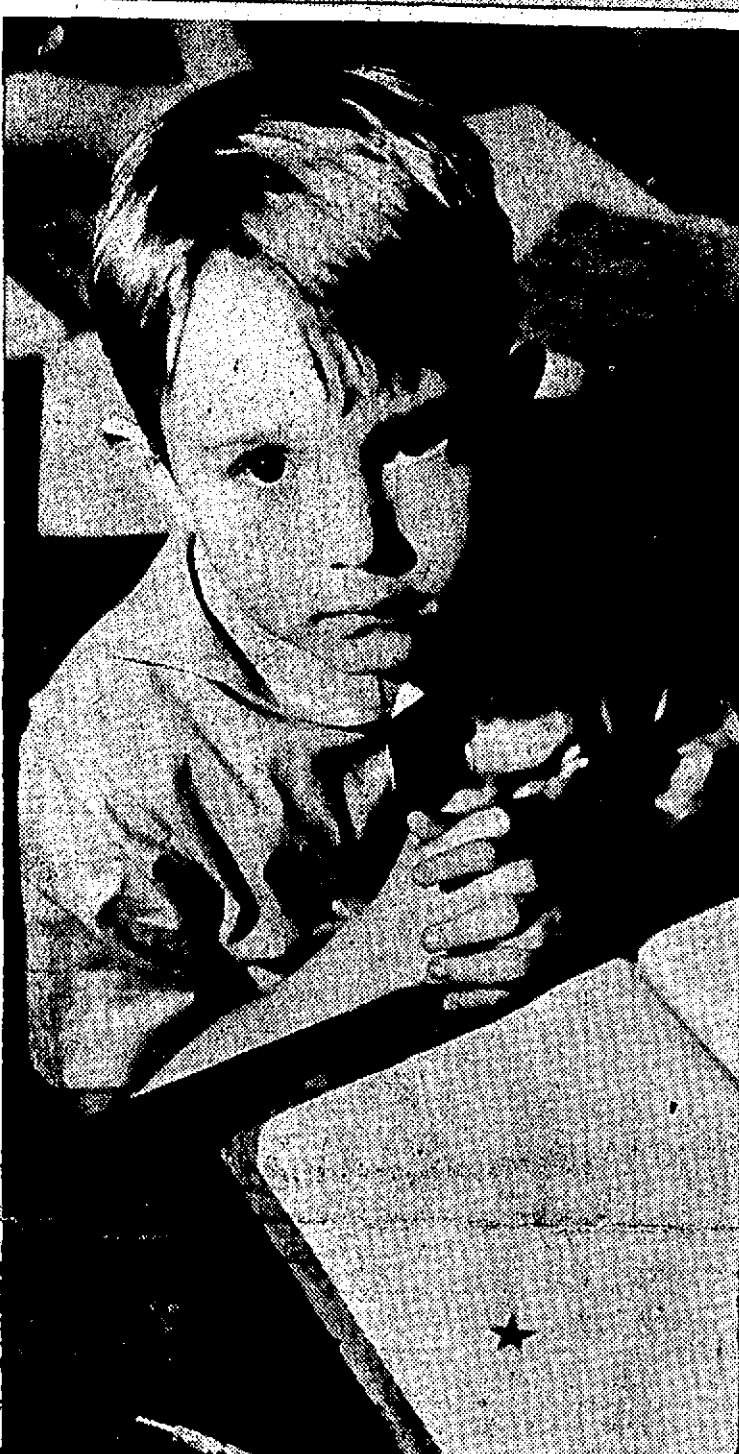

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and

That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

A VERY GOOD BOY

The earnestness and eager receptivity to the wonders of the world that mingle in this schoolboy's face might be duplicated in any schoolroom in Hope or any other community. Perhaps it was this universal appeal that moved New York City teachers to choose "A Very Good Boy" as the best of 400 photos in the Superintendent of Schools' annual pictorial report. The photo of the youngster seated before his record book, with its red star for "Excellent," got two and a half times as many votes as its nearest competitor.

Greater Damage to California Cities

5,000 Homeless After Dike Breaks in Nine Places

MERIDIAN, Calif. —(AP)—Four of the five persons who were thought to have drowned in a flood early Friday were found safe in a tree surrounded by swirling water.

One person, Mrs. Frank Fletcher, is missing. Members of her family believe she drowned.

An automobile was caught in the path of onrushing waters and was turned over like a cardboard box.

5,000 Are Homeless

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)—The Sacramento river, swollen by torrents from its many tributaries, poured yellow water through broken dikes, inundating villages and farmlands.

The breaching of the levees flooded three towns, with an aggregate of threatening situation in the lower population of about 800, and created valleys.

Weather was favorable, however, and river experts predicted the flow soon would reflect the drop of the upper stream.

Although the rising streams caused more than 5000 persons to flee their homes, the death toll from the four days of flood still stood at only two, and not more than a dozen persons were injured.

Nine brooks were forced in the levees, and the overflow isolated Butte City and its 400 residents. Princeton and Cordora. A hundred persons in Butte City were reported marooned, and relief agencies sought means of getting food and water into the town.

After the break in the dikes about 65 miles up stream from Sacramento, much concern developed for the safety of the area around Knight's Landing, near the confluence of the Sacramento and flooded tributaries. Knight's Landing is about 20 miles north of Sacramento.

MAGNOLIA, Ark. —The District No. 10 Arkansas Athletic Association basketball tournament for Class A senior boys will get under way here Friday night with four teams entered in the event.

The four teams are Magnolia, Hope, Texarkana, and Blevins. Coach Foy Hammons' Hope outfit, current Arkansas High School Conference champions, are, of course, top-heavy favorites to take the tournament. It is expected that deciding the championship is merely a formality of certifying the Bobcats for the state tournament.

The champions will meet Magnolia in the first game which is slated to get under way at 7:30 p. m. and the Texarkana team will meet Blevins immediately after the Hope-Magnolia game is finished.

Winners of Friday night's games will meet here Saturday night to decide the district championship.

J. W. England, 92, Ended His Life By Taking Strychnine

Tyler Newspaper Reports Suicide of Former Hope Man

NOTE TO RELATIVES

"No Need to Live Any Longer" Says Suicide Note

TYLER, Texas — Ninety-two years old and despondent over his poor health, J. H. England took his life Wednesday afternoon at the home of his son, J. O. England, five miles from Tyler on the Sand Flat road.

Justice of the Peace Roy Vinson said death was the result of poison, self-administered, and said he would return an official verdict of suicide.

The aged man, who had lived 52 years in Hope, Ark. before moving here last fall, had been despondent some time, relatives here said. Wednesday morning, according to officers who investigated the death, Mr. England came to Tyler and brought a small bottle of poison, which he said he would use to kill rats.

About 2 p. m., his cries attracted his daughter-in-law, who summoned her husband from the field. Mr. England died within a few minutes.

Near the body, which lay dressed across a bed, was an empty bottle, which had contained poison, a glass, in which officers said a considerable quantity of poison remained, and a note.

The roughly-penned note gave final directions, explained the aged man had "no need to live longer" and asked the family to go to no extra expense.

Services were held Thursday afternoon at Shover Springs cemetery near Hope.

Mr. England was the grandfather of Wayne H. England, of Tyler. Other survivors include another son, Loy D. England of Magnolia, Ark. a daughter, Mrs. P. C. Baker of Teague and a sister, Mrs. E. N. Cimmons of Rosedale, Miss.

Rise of Rayon Is Told to Rotarians

Second Only to Cotton Goods, Says Geo. W. Robison

A girl model beautifully gowned stood before a group of merchants in New York City recently, and the remarkable thing about her was that every stitch of clothing she wore was produced in a chemist's test-tube.

George W. Robison told Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

Rayon, and its allied products, was the item that made this possible, the speaker continued.

Rayon is a synthetic yarn that was discovered in 1884 by a pupil of Dr. Pasteur, who at that time was seeking a cure for a disease of silk worms.

The student, incidentally, hit on a process for making synthetic thread that could be woven into synthetic cloth using neither of the traditional animal products, silk or wool.

Rayon is a vegetable fibre made of wood pulp and cotton linters. These Mr. Robison said, are reduced to cellulose, which is then treated with caustic soda and carbon disulfide. The solution is then pumped into a spinnerette—a mechanical device with holes resembling the spinning holes of a silk-worm. As the solution spouts from these spinning holes it falls into an acid bath, from which it emerges as a slender yarn that is ready to be woven into cloth.

The great advance in rayon consumption began, Mr. Robison said, when the manufacturers determined to drop the phoney original term it had been introduced under, "artificial silk," and began advertising rayon on its own merits. Incidentally, the product itself was soon vastly improved.

Rayon consumption has risen in the United States, Mr. Robison continued, until today it is second only to cotton; and it is five and a half times the consumption of silk. Silk today has a consumption figure of only 1.2 per cent of the total textile consumption in the United States, the speaker said.

Rayon's predominance will increase enormously, Mr. Robison concluded, with the coming introduction of Nylon, trade name for the DuPont company's new chemical-fibre nose which is reputed to be as beautiful as silk but much longer-wearing.

Rotary guests Friday included the following Rotarians:

W. E. (Pete) Driskill, Huntsville, Texas; Ben Everitt, Arlington, Texas; and W. O. Washburn, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The United States Navy Band was founded in 1919 by Act of Congress.

1,400 Louisianians Are Fired From Job

NEW ORLEANS —(AP)—Discharge of approximately 1400 persons from the dock board payroll here since election day, February 20, was announced by John McKay, general manager of the board.

McKay's announcement came immediately after the board's membership meeting. He said in a statement:

"The general manager with the authority and approval of the board of commissioners of the port of New Orleans has made and will continue to make such reductions in personnel as he may find consistent with the efficient operations of the port of New Orleans."

"Up to this time approximately 1400 persons have been dropped from the rolls since February 20."

McKay declined to furnish a list of names of those discharged, but confirmed a report Joseph Messina, former Huey P. Long bodyguard, had been discharged as supervisor of the watching of the riverfront, effective March 15.

State to Take Loss On Credit Venture

$539,825 Loss From Agriculture Set-Up of Year 1931

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —(AP)—The comptroller's office reported Thursday that Arkansas 1931 venture into financing agricultural credit organizations would be recorded as a $539,825 failure when the last debt is paid during the 1941-42 fiscal year.

The venture already has cost the state $294,850 and $244,975, of which $10,975 is interest, must be paid in two annual installments. An audit of the agricultural credit board's accounts will be made within a few months.

The 1931 general assembly set up the board to finance formation of local credit corporations which in turn arranged for loans to farmers through the federal intermediate credit bank.

Rise and Fall of Democracy Written by Famous Author

BEGINS MONDAY

Hendrik Willem van Loon Writes 24 Thrilling Chapters

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Writer

Big and blustery as a northeast wind, easy and informal as the shirtheaves that are his customary working costume, Hendrik Willem van Loon is more than a historian, he is a personality.

All 235 pounds of Van Loon go into everything he does, whether it is writing a neat paragraph, scratching off one of his incredible little drawings, playing the fiddle or viola, cooking a meal, making a speech, or writing the new series, "The Story of Democracy."

Nobody is so well qualified as Van Loon to write about Democracy. He is Democracy in the flesh, and what flesh! He was born in Holland, and he has a contempt for the gaudy imperial ambitions of big countries that only those people know who come from countries too small to have any such ambitions. He has Dutch bluntness and Dutch practicality. He looks no more like a professor of history than an elephant looks like an aard-vark. But he has been working at this history thing for a long time. When he was 10, he set about writing "A Universal Encyclopedia of all Historical Knowledge." He has been working at it ever since. He's 57.

Has Written Many Books

He has been in America almost all his life, and is as proud of his citizenship as he is of his Dutch origins. He covered the Russian revolution of 1905 for American news services. He went back to Europe to cover the World War, and then came back to teach history again. He wrote books. The prodigious energy that matches the massiveness of his body will never let him rest, and a day beginning at 7 a. m. and ending at 1 a. m. is

Domination by the British Is Flayed By von Ribbentrop

Welles Greeted in Berlin By Air Raid Alarms

SURROUND VIIPURI

Finland's Second Largest City Surrounded By Red Army

BERLIN —(AP)—Germany is not prepared even to discuss peace until, and unless Britain's "stranglehold on the economic life of the world" is broken—this in effect is understood to have been the central thesis of the first talk Friday between President Roosevelt's fact-finding emissary and Adolf Hitler's foreign minister.

Moreover, Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop is understood to have told Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles that until Britain's dominance has ended Germany is unable to entertain Secretary Hull's ideas concerning elimination of autarchy, regimentation and totalitarianism from the post-war economic world.

After a talk with von Ribbentrop, Welles announced his interview with Hitler has been set for 4 a. m. (GST) Saturday.

Welles was greeted in Berlin Friday morning with shrieks of air raid sirens which were unintentionally martial—it was the regular alarm rehearsal.

So long as England holds Gibraltar and the Suez canal—so von Ribbentrop is supposed to have argued—there is no security for the rest of the world.

Viipuri Is Surrounded

HELSINKI —(AP)—Russia's Red army closed in on shell-battered, and deserted Viipuri from three sides Friday, locking the city tighter in a pincer-like land grip while swarms of war planes supported it with the greatest aerial offensive in days.

The Finnish command's own communique showed the Russians were moving from the southwest over islands and ice of Viipuri bay from the south and east along three railway lines, forcing the Finns to make their stands even closer to the city.

The Russians and Finns, according to Friday's communique, fought "fierce air battles" in which the defenders shot down 13 Russian planes and lost four themselves.

Blockade Problems

LONDON —(AP)—Appointment of special British and French economic experts in an attempt to smooth out blockade problems with the United States in conferences to be held at Washington was announced Friday.

The announcement said they would "assist French and British ambassadors in Washington in examining current problems with various United States government departments."

They would arrive on the liner George Washington at an "early date."

German Air Raid

LONDON —(AP)—German air raiders attacked trawlers described as fishing boats and other shipping along the east coast of Britain from Yorkshire to Thames Estuary Friday.

It was announced that Berlin German raiders attacked "numerous" British warships, convoys, and armed merchantmen Friday, dispersing the convoy and sinking several of the large ships.

The British liner Pyrrhus, 7,418 tons, was reported sunk by "enemy action" off the west coast of England with eight men lost.

By the Associated Press

Finland's dodged defenders lost more ground to the red army Thursday but took a determined stand in formidable second line defenses in a desperate effort to head off encirclement of Viipuri, major Russian objective.

The Russians, whose warplanes swarmed over Finland, killing many civilians and firing numerous towns, reported that their land forces had driven to within little more than a mile from Viipuri from the south and about five miles from the east.

While the three-month-old Russian invasion—still far from its goal—picked up momentum, these were the day's developments in Europe's "big war" as it passed the half-year mark.

France adopted a series of stringent wartime economic and financial measures, including gold revaluation and steps toward food rationing to

Internal Effect Of Head Wound Medical Puzzle
What happens when a human being suddenly becomes unconscious after a bump on the head?
The widespread use of the automobile and the development of machines of all types which make such accidents frequent have focused considerable attention on this subject.
Formerly it was thought that unconsciousness results after a blow on the head because of a sudden increase in the pressure inside the skull. If unconsciousness after a blow on the head lasts more than five minutes there is usually serious damage to the brain itself or else there is hemorrhage in the large blood vessels. In concussion, however, such damage has not occurred.
There has been some difficulty in explaining the rise in pressure within the skull. It has been suggested, for example, that the skull is indented by the blow and that the volume of space inside the skull is thus reduced. However, this does not seem to be a satisfactory explanation because usually the indentation is small.
When a prize fighter is knocked out in the ring, the punch is usually applied to a point, on the lower jaw, it is possible, however, to knock out a man with a blow on any region of the head. The experts have not been able to determine with any certainty just why the blow on the chin is more likely to produce a knock-out. In general, investigators are inclined to believe that following a blow on the head there is a very short period in which the blood vessels in the head contract to such an extent that the supply of blood to the brain is considerably reduced. This produces a condition called cerebral anemia, which merely means a lack of blood in the brain.
Lack of blood to the brain or a lack of oxygen may act to produce dizziness. People who are poisoned by carbon monoxide gas frequently have permanent damage to the brain because of lack of oxygen. For that reason experts are inclined to think that the fighter who gets "punch drunk" gets that condition because of a frequent number of punches on the head resulting in a lack of oxygen for the brain.

No Farm Profits in War
When things first began getting better in Europe late last summer, farmers squinted hopefully toward their fields and began calculating increases and ensuing profits. Farmers who haven't learned their lesson last September that visions of profits are strictly pipe dreams are being reminded now, by Department of Agriculture officials, that it is not likely to open any great markets for American produce.
In a matter of fact, because of credit difficulties and transportation handicaps, exports to Europe have already been cut.
At a recent meeting of the National Institute, in Des Moines, Ia., farmers were told by AAA Administrator R. M. Evans, not to count on anything spectacular happening to market this year. And as for the post-war period—no soap. Not the way to look now. Europe may need grain crops when the war is over, but probably won't be enough money left on the entire continent to buy a bag of rice at whole prices.
Evans pointed out that American farmers have already felt the effect of finding themselves with restricted surpluses on hand. Tobacco, for example, England used to be a good customer of southern growers, but when the war broke out, this trade suddenly stopped. England had accumulated large stocks, and if she needs more tobacco, she will get it somewhere else.
Under any circumstances, the farm being protected, as far as it is, against a short-lived boom and subsequent long depression of prices, partly with labor's share, and partly with the farmer's share. Generally speaking, he is far more interested in sudden war profits than in a reasonably steady income after the war.
There is an equitable return for labor and his investment and he will not be enticed by any profit making a war on other peacemakers.

Market Climax Went Unnoticed
On Sept. 3, 1929
Some day the historians are going to look back into the limbo of the 1930's, and when they do they had better consult Frederick Lewis Allen's "Since Yesterday" (Harpers: $3). This is a lively, vital account of the last 10 years in the same vein as "Only Yesterday," which Allen wrote about the 1920's. It is remarkable how much we have jammed into these 10 years bull market, depression, New Deal, recession, Huey Long, Mae West, Edward and Wallis, jitterbugs, mid-gits and Morgan, a new world war. Mr. Allen links the whole amazing panorama, onto a clear path so that you have finally a new bit of contemporary history, illustrated. Do you remember September 3, 1929? Mr. Allen does:
It is a very hot day, this first Tuesday in September, 1929. . . . The automobiles surging by you are angular, there isn't a streamline among them. . . . The fashionable figure is straight up and down—no breasts.

Question on Page One
We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.
